

Plants and the Wind

Some small plant seeds are very light. They are carried by the wind to new places. This is an important part of nature.

The plant seeds are carried away from their parents. They spread out across the land.

As they grow in new places, they don't have to compete with other plants for nutrients, water, and sunlight.

Many plant seeds, spores, and fruits use the wind to survive.